Perception Software's EDA integration software to be offered through Oracle

EDAConnect available as part of Oracle's Agile PLM solution

Austin, TX, November 12, 2007 –Perception Software announced today the availability of EDAConnect as part of Oracle's Agile PLM solutions. Oracle will offer EDAConnect through its worldwide sales force, as well as provide product support through its worldwide support center.

EDAConnect provides a seamless integration for electronic systems and IC design tools from Cadence and Mentor Graphics to Oracle's Agile PLM environment. Within their familiar EDA environment, engineers can perform design check-in/check-out, design archiving and searching, bill of materials extractions, comparisons and publishing, design file viewing, and library metadata synchronization.

"Oracle is pleased to offer Perception's EDAConnect capabilities to our customers," said Hardeep Gulati, Oracle Vice President Product Strategy, PLM and PIM Applications." In today's world, electronics is a critical and growing component of product content across industry verticals. Companies using MCAD-based PDM systems continue to struggle in managing electronics product information. Now with deeper integration capabilities to EDA design environments, Oracle is furthering our differentiation as the leading Enterprise PLM solution with comprehensive capabilities for all engineering and enterprise stakeholders."

"We are looking forward to working closely with Oracle's Agile PLM product team to continue to evolve our joint capabilities for the benefit of our high-tech and semiconductor customers," said Joe Dalton, CEO of Perception Software.
